day afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the case of Cernelius Driscoll, who was killed on the raffrond track on Sixth street. The jury. after looking at the mangled body of Des-coll in a small box in the rear of Lee's un-dertaking rooms, went to the Sfxth Pre-cinct station, and, after deliberation, found that the railway company was responsible for not having a lookout on the engine when it was backing up.

This was a direct violation of the District law. A boy who testified before the jury claimed that be had warned Driscoll of the approach of the engine, but the response was, "Go to hear; don't you suppose I see its?"

THE RECHABLTE RUMPUS.

Interesting Details, The tents of the Rechabites are still pitched in the valley of discord, and the sons of Biblical Rechab, who advised his tribe not to drink wine all their days, are tribe not to drink wine all their days, are engaged in the fracas which commenced same time ago.

Last light a Cattro reporter not a past chief ruler of the order who is opposed to the Webb-Patterson faction. He said the trouble originated in Salem Tent, No. 154, of Anacostia, two months ago, when Webb, who was a member of the tent, asked for a withdrawal card, but as the necessary amount did not accompany the application it was laid on the table. Webb, it is said, worked against the interest of the tent, Two or three weeks after he had asked for the eard of withdrawal the card was granted against his protest, the money therefor being appropriated from the tent treasury.

This tred Webb, who was also chief ruler and sceretary of the District Grand Tent and retiring to the ante-room he demaed his Grand Tent regalls and suspended Sulem Tent. High Chief Ruler Frank E, De Yoe of Waterloo, N. Y., upon heling appealed to, relicitated the tent, when upon the members thereof preferred charges against Webb and suspended him from Salem Tent and the order for seventeen years. Himself and friends, still considering this tent suspended from the order ignored his suspension.

Five primary tents in this District, one lady test and one junior stood by the members of Salem, while four primary tents, two of which were said to have been reorganized for the purpose of trying to control the District Grand Tent in the matter, one that had not held regular meetings for several months, but assembled from house to house of its members, and one legal tent (Eagle), with one lady tent and one junior controlled by it, took sides with the Webb-Patterson faction.

High Chief Ruler De Yoe, hearing of the shape the order was in here, came on from waterloot to try and straighten out matters. He called a conference meeting of the contending factions last Sunday, but the conference availed nothing, the rupture being only widened, as the high chief refused to recognize Webb as grand chief ruler of the District on

District, and his friends persisted in calling him such.

The High Chief Ruler then called a meeting of Grand Tent of the District on Wednesday evening. The tent was organized by the election of J. C. Lee of Cammack Tent, No. 56, as Grand Chief Ruler; P. B. Jones of Union, No. 87, as Grand Deputy Ruler; James H. Loveless of Eagle, No. 2, as Past Chief Ruler; Thomas W. Scott of Salem, No. 154, as Grand Recording Secretary; J. E. Minnix of the same tent as Trensurer; R. H. Johnson of Heber, No. 10, as Levite; Thomas B. Marche of Cammack, No. 50, as Chaplain and Robert Mundell of Anacostia, No. 138, as Inner Guard. These officers were installed by the High Chief Ruler and a committee appointed to waitupon the late Grand Chief Ruler, Mr. Webb, and procure from him the property of the late Grand District Tent. This they will do one day during the present week.

On Thursday High Chief Ruler De Yee formally declared the office of high secretary, held by Mr. Webb, vacant, and appointed F. A. Alkins of Waterloo, N. Y., to fill the vacancy. He also notified Mr. L. H. Patterson of his suspension as grand secretary of the District of Columbia, and from the order for seven years, for disobeying his orders in refusing to call the Dis-

from the order for seven years, for disobey-ing his orders in refusing to call the District Grand Tent meeting on Wednesday

The Patterson-Webb meeting was held on Thursday evening at Knights of Labor Hall and another District Grand Tentor-ganized, as discribed in Tun Chirto at the time. "There is no doubt," said a member of the Pe You fastion. "but that District Grand Chief Kuler Lee will shortly issue Grand Chief Kuler Lee will shortly issue an oader suspending all the tents that were represented at the Webt-Patterson meeting if they persist in their course."

The High Chief Ruler visited Heber Tent No. 19, Anacostia, No. 188, Salem, No. 184, and New Grand Tent and Campack Tent, No. 56, before he left for his home in New York. He expressed himself as satisfied at the condition of affairs here and expesses to properly of the orand expects to receive reports of the or-der's prospertly, now that "certain objec-tionable parties" have been suspended. He also stated that the disaffection would be small, extending only to the immediate friends of the Webb-Patterson faction. That the disaffection in this District will Webb has not turned a cent of the funds of the order over to the High Treasurer." His books, they say, were demanded, but he refused to give them up, and it is possible, they alledge, that the High Tent will have to bear the whole loss.

At the last meeting of the latter body the salary of the high secretary was abolished, but through Webb's failure to promulgate the proceedings making this act lawful he has still continued to draw his pay. The situation is becoming interesting, and other results are expected daily.

A Washington Past Chief Ruler Gives The Subjects of a Scientific Lecture Interesting Details, Yesterday Afternoon, The interior of the lecture hall at the National Museum was well filled yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock when Professor T. engaged in the fraces which commenced some time ago.

Last night a Chirto reporter root a past chief ruler of the order who is opposed to the Webb-Patterson faction. He said the trouble originated in Salem Tent, No. 154, of Amcostia, two months ago, when Webb, who was a member of the tent, asked for a withdrawal card, but as the necessary amount did not accompany the application it was laid on the table. Webb, it is said, worked against the interest of the tent, Two or three weeks after he had asked for the eard of withdrawal the card was granted.

C. Mendenhall delivered his lecture on "Chance and the Long Run." The professor illusfrated portions of his remarks by the aid of a large blackboard and several charts. Among the illustrations shown was an interesting list of authorship by analyzing the words used by any author. He would take, for instance, 1,000 or 5,000 words from one of Diegens' works and tabulate them, placing the two-letter words, those with three, four, five letters and so on together in separate columns. Then from these he would draw a wayy line over the diagram, which he termed "the author's curve." U. Mendenhall delivered his lecture

"the author's curve," Professor Mendenhali claimed that, by his method, he could determine whether Lord Bacon or the "so-called Shakespeare" wrote the Shakes-pearian works and said it would require the counting of the number of latters in 100,000 words to make the test and establish the fact of authorship.

authorship.
"If any gentleman within the sound of my voice." he added laughingly, "will give $5,000, I will count the words and undertake the test."

The average word length of authors, as established mathematically, is four letters. The lecturer also showed, by the use of mathematics, that gambling, or in fact any game of chance, is bad, as the loss in every case is greater than the gain. A man made a safe bet when he offered $1,000 to $1 that seven could not be thrown with dice ten times successively. The real chance that it can be is sixty millions to one; so that $60,00,000 to $1 would be a fair bet. The next lecture of the course will be delivered next Thursday evening at $ p, m, by Edward Burgess on "Yachts and Yachting."
